"We are excited to have Jason back with us," said firm founder and CEO Bob Livingston. "Jason has developed tremendous, substantive experience while working for the congress and the Bush Administration as well as the governor of Maryland, which will be valuable to our clients."

Previously, Chung served on staff for two Members of Congress Congressman Thomas M. Davis, III (R-VA), then Chairman of Government Reform Committee and Congressman Christopher Shays (R-CT). Chung advised the Chairman and Members of the Committee on Government Reform on issues related to international trade, homeland defense, and anti-terrorism. While with Congressman Shays, Chung worked on the Subcommittee on National Security, Veterans Affairs and International Relations.

Chung's background includes extensive experience working on Homeland Security legislation from the Congressional and the Agency perspective, including port and border security. He contributed in advising CBP principals on issues involving the 9/11 Recommendations Act, Border Security and Immigration Reform legislation. As a congressional aide, Chung also assisted in the development of HR 5005, the Homeland Security Act of 2002. His experience working on homeland security and foreign affairs issues will prove useful to TLG's many complementary practice areas.

"It's good to be home," said Chung of his return to TLG, "I am honored to work with Bob Livingston again and assist clients with the needs and endeavors before Congress and the Executive Branch."
