For Immediate Release

February 6, 2006

Washington, DC – The Livingston Group, LLC (TLG) today announced the affiliation of Mark R. Maddox, formerly Acting Assistant Secretary of Fossil Energy at the U.S. Department of Energy. Maddox, who served in the Bush Administration under Secretaries Samuel Bodman and Spencer Abraham, will focus on the following TLG practice areas: Energy and the Environment; International Relations; and, Science, Technology and Telecom. Maddox had previously worked at DOE during the George H.W. Bush Administration as Deputy Director of Communications.

“We’re pleased to have Secretary Maddox on board,” said TLG founding partner and Chief Executive Officer Bob Livingston. “At a time when energy issues are front and center, his expertise in energy and budget policy, his ‘know how’ of the legislative process and keen understanding of regulatory issues will be tremendous assets to our clients. He’s a great fit for the firm.”

As Acting Assistant Secretary, Maddox oversaw a $750 million budget. Among the numerous proposals under his responsibility, he managed the following high profile initiatives: the Alaska Natural Gas Pipeline, the FutureGen Zero Emissions Power Plant, Integrated Gasification Combined Cycle Power Plant development, Liquefied Natural Gas policy, the 21-nation Carbon Sequestration Leadership Forum and the Strategic Petroleum Reserve.

Before moving to his role as Acting Assistant Secretary, Maddox served as a Senior Policy Advisor to the Secretary on fossil energy and environmental management issues. He also served as Principal Deputy Assistant Secretary for Fossil Energy. In addition, Maddox worked in the Government and Public Affairs shop at Lockheed Martin as a director for the Integrated Management Systems division. Maddox also has political experience as chief of staff for Congressman Nathan Deal and as a campaign strategist for the National Republican Congressional Committee (NRCC) and the Republican National Committee (RNC).

“It is a privilege to work with Congressman Livingston and the excellent team of strategists he has assembled to represent a top-notch list of clients,” Maddox said. “I was attracted to the firm for the same reasons dozens of clients have signed up: TLG is responsive to client needs, creative in its approach to client problems, and committed to finding solutions that produce positive results.”
